Upon leaving the East Coast, Woods continued to work and collected many trades and professional certifications. Over the past eight years, she has built seven successful companies on her own while dedicating her leadership abilities to creating adult workforce training programs, and women and youth internship programs within her business models. In addition, Woods continuously advocates for the importance of financial literacy, entrepreneurship, and education in the African American community.

As a powerful force in the local business sector, Woods uses her positive attitude and tireless energy to encourage others to work hard and succeed. In her free time, she enjoys networking, traveling, and spending time with her family.
