Vice President, Marketing Manager
Global Supplier Diversity

Jill Davis is Vice President, Marketing Manager of Global Supplier Diversity at JPMorgan Chase and oversees supplier diversity related communications on the firm's intranet and external publications. She initiates sponsorship activations, advertising placement, and special events designed to educate diverse suppliers and foster their success. Jill's outreach contributes to more than $2 billion in annual spend with minority-, women-, veteran-, disabled- and LGBT-owned companies, and the firm's induction into the Billion Dollar Roundtable.

Before joining JPMorgan Chase in 2017, Jill was Director of Corporate Services at the New York & New Jersey Minority Supplier Development Council, a business advocacy organization dedicated to certifying and developing minority owned businesses in the New York area. During her tenure, Jill doubled the organization's local corporate membership, enhanced member engagement and implemented council programs to promote and share supplier diversity best practices.

Prior to her time at the Council, Jill spent eight years as Vice President of Marketing & Business Development at The MATLET Group, a mid-size minority-owned commercial printing company. She raised the profile of The MATLET Group's corporate brand, and implemented a diverse-business strategy to develop new business opportunities with corporations across the U.S.

Jill also developed New York City Highlights, the first local publication dedicated to helping visitors to Harlem, NY locate historical sites, dining, shopping and special events in the area. She has also served on the editorial advisory board of the Episcopal New Yorker, the official publication of the Episcopal Diocese of New York.

Jill holds a Bachelor of Science in Communications from St. John's University and a Masters in Business Administration from the Gabelli School of Business at Fordham University.
